Objective

As long as I can remember, I have been fascinated by the world of computers and technology. I found joy in using, creating, and learning about various aspects of technology. This passion has only grown stronger over the years. As a husband and father, I am motivated to pursue a career in this field, not only for my personal gratification but also to provide a better future for my family. Ultimately, my goal is to become a full-stack software developer, equipped with a deep understanding of front-end, back-end and databases.
